

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGESSTION

In this chapter, the researcher will present suggestions and conclusions based on the research findings and the description of the previous chapter regarding analysis on the language styles of song lyrics "november rain" in the album of guns n' roses.

A. Sugesstion

In this research entitled analysis on the language styles of song lyrics "november rain" in the album of guns n' roses, the researcher provides suggestions based on the research results. The researcher's suggestions for lecturers, students, and other researchers are as follows:

a. Lecturer

In this research for lecturers that learning language styles is very important for daily life. This research especially for school environment for the practice of learning to listening, writing, and speaking. Language styles can help lectures to teaching students.

b. Students

In this study to provide advice to students that learning language styles is very important for everyday life. Language styles can be found in literary works such as song lyrics.

Meanwhile, Learning language styles can help students improve english.

c. Other researcher

In this study for other researcher that this research is far from perfect. Others researchers can provide responses or input for research models on studying language styles for further research.

B. Conclusion

Language style is an expression to express something that has meaning. Language style has various types such as comparative language style, contradictory language style, linking language style, and repetition language style. Song lyrics are a series of words that have meaning and each stanza has a rhythm. This research examines the language style in the lyrics of the song november rain on the guns n' roses album. In this research using Tarigan's theory (2013:4), language style is beautiful language used to increase the effect by introducing and comparing a particular object or thing with other more general objects or things. Researcher found types of comparative language style, contradictory language style, and repetition language style. Comparative language style was found with a total of 45%. Then, the contradictory language style was found with a total of 27%. Meanwhile, the repetition language style was found with a total of 27%. In addition, researcher did not find the use of linking language style types in the lyrics of the song november rain. The researcher chose the lyrics of this song to be researched because of its continuity with everyday life. This research uses descriptive qualitative and is conducted independently which is done several times for the data collection process. Then, the meaning of november rain is based on real events experienced by the vocalist of guns n' roses, namely about the unrequited love life of a much-loved lover. The love story feels deep sadness and the difficulty of living life in a very cold situation in november rain. In the research of november rain song lyrics on the guns n' roses album, the type that is mostly found is a comparative language style consisting of metaphor and personification. The contradictory language styles such as antithesis, litoles, and paradox. In addition, there are repetition language styles such as anaphora and epistropha. This research has been conducted several times during data collection.

